UNIVERSITÀ
DEGLI STUDI DI MILANO-BICOCCA

COURSE SYLLABUS

Dermatology

2627-3-H4601D016-H4601D043M

Aims

DERMATOLOGY: Based on the history, symptoms, skin examination and on a few selected laboratory examinations, the student must know how to make a dermatological diagnosis. Furthermore, the student must achieve a practical knowledge of the dental aspects of some dermatological disorders.

Contents

The course aims to provide students with the tools for understanding the main neurological and dermatological diseases together with their dental reflections.

Detailed program

DERMATOLOGY.

Structure and function of the skin. Morpho-dermatological Semeiology.

Psoriasis. Atopic Dermatitis. Allergic and irritant contact dermatitis.

Pigmented lesions: nevus, melanomas. Precancerosis. Basal cell and spinocellular carcinomas.

Bullous pathologies:.pemphigus pemphigoid, herpetiform dermatitis.

Cutaneous disimmune diseases. systemic lupus erythematosus, dermatomyositis scleroderma. Iatrogenic cutaneous lesions: fixed iatrogenic erythema, erythema multiforme, Lyell’s disease.

Sexual transmitted infections: streptobacillosis, lymphogranuloma venereum, gonococcal and non-gonococcal urethritis, AIDS.

Urticaria. Scabies. Pediculosis. Acne vulgaris. Lichen planus. Infectious cutaneous diseases (viral, fungal, pyogenic).

Skin metastasis. Kaposi sarcoma.

Prerequisites

Completion of the examinations of the second years courses

Teaching form

40 total hours of lessons (4 CFU), all delivered in person and in presence mode

Textbook and teaching resource

DERMATOLOGY

1. Cainelli T, Gianetti A, Rebora A. Dermatologia Medica e Chirurgica. V edizione, Mc Graw Hill 2012.

Semester

Second semester

Assessment method

Oral exam with assessment of learning and understanding of the topics covered in the present Teaching Unit, through simulated clinical cases and/or in-depth questions on diseases of the Nervous System and their implications in the dental field.
The teachers belonging to the other Teaching Unit will do the same
The final evaluation will take into account the results obtained in the different components

Office hours

Upon e-mail contact with the appointed teacher

Sustainable Development Goals

GOOD HEALTH AND WELL-BEING