COURSE SYLLABUS

Criminal Law (crimes Against Public Administration and Administration of Justice)

2021-5-A5810196

Learning objectives

The course aims to provide students with the interpretative tools to discuss the cases (crimes against public administration and justice) that will be treated in class.

The ultimate goal is to improve the critical and application skills of future lawyers.

Contents

The course will focus on crimes against public administration (corruption, bribery, abuse of office, etc.) and against the administration of justice (aiding and abetting, false testimony, slander, etc.).

The various crimes will be illustrated starting from their classification in the constitutional and supranational context; the requirements will then be analyzed also in the light of the relevant jurisprudence.

Ample space will be dedicated to the cases, which will be distributed and discussed in class.

Compatibly with the availability of the students, the final exam can be optionally carried out through participation in a simulated trial
