Prerequisites

Nothing specific. A good knowledge of the basis of Psychology enables a more aware use of the course contents.

Teaching methods

Teaching methods include the use of lectures, films and classroom discussions.

To implement the ability of applying knowledge and understanding the lessons include the participation of professionals operating in different contexts.

The dialogue with judges, solicitors, educators and social workers promote the ability of dialoguing with other disciplines; the dialogue with expert psychologists upgrades the ability to apply the models in natural settings

All course material (e.g., slides, readings) are made available on the e-learning website of the course, so that also non-attending students can use it.

Learning is customized both for attending and non-attending students by the deepening of guided choice topics.

Attending students are allowed to attend the lab at the criminal Court of Milan.

Non-attending students are going to work on a court-case.

Lessons will be held in presence or through online video lessons, according to the University's regulations regarding the COVID-19 emergency situation. In both cases, all lessons will be video recorded and made available to the students.

Assessment methods

The achievement of learning objectives (previously described) is tested through an oral examination.

Both in-depth topic and lab-work are included in the examination.

Evaluation criteria:

- Accuracy and comprehensiveness of knowledge
- Language appropriateness
- Comprehension of the distinct traits of the discipline
- Competence in reflecting about problems of interdisciplinarity

During the Covid-19 emergency, exams will be conducted according to the University's regulations regarding the COVID-19 emergency situation.
