COURSE SYLLABUS

Ethnolinguistics

2021-2-E2001R004

Course title

Ethnolinguistics

Topics and course structure

Ethnolinguistics investigates the relationship between codified linguistic behaviors within social groups and the socio-anthropological framework in which such behaviors are manifested. Sociolinguistics studies linguistic variation in relation to the social conditions of the speakers and their linguistic communities.

Objectives

Methodologies

Presently the couses will be offered in a mixed modality: mainly online lessons (recorded) will be combined with face-to-face expansions and exercises in small groups.

Teaching is based on lectures and dialogues, with projection and discussion of images and analysis of concrete examples and case studies drawn from European and non-European ethno- and socio-linguistic situations.

Online and offline teaching materials

Programme and references for attending students

Programme and references for non-attending students

Assessment methods

It depends on the sanitary conditions that will occur in January. Below are those in force in normal periods

Written exam, based on the concepts learned during the course or taken from the essays proposed in the accompanying bibliography, followed by and a possible oral optional examination

Evaluation criteria privilege the solidity of the acquired skills and the ability of the students to analyze ethno- and socio-linguistically plurilingual and multicultural situations.
