UNIVERSITÀ
DEGLI STUDI DI MILANO-BICOCCA

SYLLABUS DEL CORSO

Disfunzioni del Pavimento Pelvico

2122-5-H4101D210

Aims

Improvement of gynecologic functional pathology .

Advanced study of instrumental diagnostic tools and surgical reconstructive techniques.

Contents

Description and Objective:

Pelvic floor dysfunctions afflict up to 50% of female population and include, urinary and fecal incontinence, genital prolapse, chronic pelvic pain, congenital malformations and sexual disorders.

Aim of the course is to provide diagnostic and therapeutic tools, including rehabilitation medical and surgical treatment.

Detailed program

Didactic program:

Functional and surgical anatomy of female pelvis

Urinary and fecal continence physiology

Instrumental diagnosis: urodynamics, imaging, EMG.

Rehabilitation: physiotherapy, FES, biofeedback.

Pharmacology.

Surgical techniques.

Prerequisites

5th year Medical Student and over

Teaching form

Lectures, subject to any ministerial changes following the COVID pandemic situation

video sessions

Textbook and teaching resource

Cardozo, Staskin. Textbook of female urology and urogynecology, III Ed. Informa

Semester

Secon Semester, April

Assessment method

Interactive verification at the course conclusion

Office hours

By appointment