UNIVERSITÀ
DEGLI STUDI DI MILANO-BICOCCA

COURSE SYLLABUS

Nursing Sciences

2122-1-I0202D005-I0202D016M

Aims

At the end of the course, the student must have acquired the knowledge of the physiological development factors of the newborn, of the factors that characterize the different methods of care in different cultures.

Contents

Definition of "profession", skills. Concept of health and disease. . Elements and notions of childcare and elements that characterize it in the different socio / cultural areas.

Detailed program

- Characteristics of the newborn
- Methods for assessing the health of the newborn in the first hours of life
- Hospital course after birth
- Basics of caring for the newborn
- Basics of breast attachment
- Basic notions on care diversity in migrant populations

Prerequisites

Listed in the syllabus of the whole course.

Teaching form

Listed in the syllabus of the whole course.

Textbook and teaching resource

M. Mancia, La normale complessità del venire al mondo, Guerini Ed., 2006

Semester

Listed in the syllabus of the whole course.

Assessment method

Listed in the syllabus of the whole course.

Office hours

Listed in the syllabus of the whole course.