COURSE SYLLABUS

Psychology of Gender Differences and Inequalities

2122-2-F5106P013

Learning area

Fundamentals and research methods in social and economic psychology

Learning objectives

Knowledge and understanding:

-The gender matter

-The concepts of disparity and inequalities

- The social construction's processes that make inequalities socially accepted

Applying knowledge and understanding:

- The capacity to identify which circumstances reinforce the disparity and inequalities

- The ability to apply "best practices" to pursue social changes

- The ability to make a comparison between Italian and European situation

Contents

The course focuses on the differences and inequalities, using the construct of gender (masculine, feminine) to present wider topics such as inequality and disparity (not only between men and women, but also between natives and immigrants, Catholics and atheists or people with other religious beliefs, neoliberal or conservative people). The aim of this course is to introduce theoretical frameworks and to describe processes sustaining the social inequalities.

Detailed program

- The concepts of parity, equality, difference.
- From sex differences to gender inequalities.
- A psychosocial definition of genders.
- Gender stereotypes and social representations of gender.
- The theoretical construct of gender in social psychology: between theory and practice.
- Where sexual differences and inequalities take place: school, job places, politics, couple relationships, family life.
- Social changes, best practices.

Prerequisites

A good knowledge of the basis of Psychology (in particular of Social Psychology) enables a more aware use of the course contents. Students lacking such basic knowledge are encourage to ask for a list of basic references.

Teaching methods

Lectures, discussions, video presentations.

In addition to classroom lectures, part of the teaching takes place through the discussion of scientific articles, case studies, video presentations and exercises on the course topics.

The material (slides and, when possible, scientific articles) is made available on the e-learning site of the course, so that it can also be used by non- attending students.

Lessons will be held in presence, unless further COVID-19 related restrictions are imposed.

Assessment methods

The exam is oral. The questions are aimed at ascertaining the effective acquisition of both theoretical knowledge and the ability to apply them to reality. The evaluation criteria are: the correctness of the answers, the ability to argue, synthesize, create links, and critically read the reality.
