SYLLABUS DEL CORSO

Management e Innovazione Sostenibile

2122-2-F6302N032

Learning objectives

The course addresses some of the most important and topical issues for companies and organizations of all kinds, namely: sustainability as an economic and political discourse; sustainability implemented through managerial and organizational practices; social and sustainable innovation as practices to create new shared, public and social value. The course analyzes these issues using both a practical and critical thinking approach and provides the opportunity to carry out a project work.
