Course title

INTERCULTURAL PEDAGOGY

Topics and course structure

The tuition course aims to introduce students to observe through the “magnifying glass” of the intercultural approach the widespread educational scenario that characterizes the actual complex and multicultural society.

Students will be invited to focus on and think about some topics of educational interest: identity, cultural and linguistic diversities, intercultural dialogue, values and rules, stereotypes and prejudices, different expressions of racism, intercultural competences due to be developed.

Objectives

The course intends to stimulate the following learning objects:

Knowledge and theoretical understanding:

Combine knowledge and understanding:

- promoting awareness, critical thinking/reflection and in depth understanding of diversity and intercultural dialogue;
- making use of the basic concepts/topics/problems of the discipline in the different educational contexts that characterize the intercultural complexity of contemporary societies.

Autonomy and critical thinking:

Methodologies

Teaching will include frontal lessons, individual and collective exercises on critical cases or topics, classroom discussions about current events, readings and movies.

Online and offline teaching materials
