Short description

Aims:

For first-year PhD students: to be able to choose and discuss an article in public. For second-year PhD students: discuss a technique they use highlighting strengths and critical issues.

Description:

This teaching activity is organized every 15 days from March to June. The meetings are organized as follows: one or two first-year students present an article that is discussed with the other students and with some members of the teaching staff. In the same meeting one or two second-year students describe a technique used in their research project and emphasize its usefulness, effectiveness but also its defects. To discuss with the second-year students, members of the teaching board who have experience with the techniques on display are invited

Evaluation:

The members of the teaching board present give an opinion to the students' exposures
