SYLLABUS DEL CORSO

Diritto Pubblico e dell'Economia - 1

2324-1-E3303M005-T1

Learning objectives

This course intends to offer a reasoned recognition of the institutions of public law more directly related to economic dynamics. The "economic constitution" is the framework within which the multiple and varied intervention strategies of the State and other public bodies in the economic field are developed. A careful look also at the European and supranational dynamics will allow to intercept the implications of the public law of the economy in a global perspective.

Contents

The course will be structured in three main parts. The first part includes the reconstruction of the Italian constitutional system, starting from the system of sources of law and analyzing the form of government and the guarantee institutions. The second part is dedicated to the "economic constitution", i.e. the principles and rules that the Constitution dedicates to the economic factor understood in its complexity. Finally, the third part focuses on administrative action as a side that more than others sees the State as the protagonist in its operational dimension in the economic sphere.

Prerequisites

A good knowledge of the Italian political and institutional framework is useful, without neglecting the historical dimension at least referring to the republican experience. The same goes for Italy's involvement in the European integration process and for the constantly evolving international scenarios.

Teaching methods

Lectures with in-depth analysis of concrete cases, through the direct participation of students.

Assessment methods

The exams will take place in oral form. However, a first written test is foreseen, approximately halfway through the course, consisting of three open-ended questions on the topics covered up to that moment in class. At the end of the course, for those who have passed the ongoing test, there will be another written test in the same way. The weighted average of the two outcomes will be the vote proposal which can be accepted (exam passed) or rejected (need to take the oral exam: the proposed vote can be improved or worsened).
