COURSE SYLLABUS

Private Law

2324-2-E1601N003

Learning objectives

The course aims to provide the student with knowledge of the main institutions of private law, through the study of the manual, the civil code and the main laws of the sector. The course also aims to stimulate the reasoning ability of the student, who through the study of practical cases must be able to reason independently, identifying the rule to be applied to the specific case.

Contents

The course has as its object the identification of the fundamental lines of the private law system, and the learning of the main concepts regarding its institutions

Detailed program

The law and the juridical norm. The legal relationship and active and passive legal situations. Individuals. General notions on bonds. The fulfillment of the obligations. Non-fulfillment of obligations and compensation for damage. Contract defining and classifying profiles. The agreement of the contractual parties. The vices of the will in the contract. The structure of the tort. Compensation for damages from unlawful acts: pecuniary damage and non-pecuniary damage. Principles and notions of family law. Separation and divorce between spouses

Prerequisites

The Institutions of Private Law course does not require particular prerequisites. It is necessary, however, that from the outset the student demonstrates the ability to reason, reflect and systematically coordinate between the various institutions of private law being studied.

Teaching methods

The course is divided into face-to-face lessons. Bibliographic and jurisprudential information will be provided during the lessons.

Assessment methods

Oral examination. The student will be asked about the program indicated in the Syllabus and the parts of the book indicated in the Syllabus. The oral exam will aim at verifying the learning of the institutions covered by the program and the reasoning skills of the student.
