COURSE SYLLABUS

The New Palliative Care Culture

2324-2-I0101D906

Aims

At the end of the course students will be able to:

- Knowledge in palliative care in light of recent legislative and socio-cultural changes.
- The analysis of palliative care needs and the knowledge of the "palliative care network", of the levels of care provided and of the phases of taking charge.
- The importance of the team and the different roles in accompanying the incurable and advanced disease patients.

Contents

Palliative care is the active and comprehensive care given to the patient when the disease no longer responds to the healing treatment. The control of pain and other symptoms, of psychological, social and spiritual problems is of primary importance. Palliative care is interdisciplinary and involves the patient, his family and the community in general. They take care of the patient who takes care of guaranteeing the most basic needs wherever they are, at home or in hospital. Palliative care respects life and considers dying a natural process. Their purpose is not to accelerate or defer death, but to preserve the best possible quality of life until the end. In this sense, the role of the professional nurse is therefore of fundamental importance, as highlighted by articles 35 and 39 of the Deontological Code of Nurses (2009).
