Topics and course structure

- Reading and writing real-world texts and real-world purposes.
- Writing as the development of a symbolic tool: children's conceptualization of written language.
- The problem of "didactic transposition" in literacy practice.
- Didactic design for spelling linguistic reflection.
- The purposes of reading and writing.
- Theory of composing processes: emotional issues, strategies and writing and theory of comprehension processes: strategies and shared reading.
- Reading comprehension and study.
- Engaging and effective practices in early literacy.
- Origin of mistakes and their importance for learning processes.

Objectives

In terms of knowledge and understanding this course promotes:

- To know how to assess the writing competences of pupils
- To know how to evaluate the pupil's ability to comprehend the content of different types of texts.
- To know how to plan reading and writing projects, activities and tasks considering both the use of written language and the ways in which pupils learn.

- To know and understand of different theories of learning
- To know and understand different teaching methods and approaches

In terms of the ability to transfer this knowledge in teacher practices, this course promotes:

- The ability to put in relation different theoretical models
- The ability to apply different theoretical models

In terms of reflection.

- To practice self-reflection regarding practices (if already a teacher) or to reflect upon the practices of the senior teacher observed during the internship.

Methodologies

The course includes 28 hours of lessons and 24 hours of workshop. To access the exam, it is required to have completed the workshop.

- The lessons will be discussion based and will revolve around the students' experiences as teachers or their observations of teachers during the previous year's internship.
- Each lesson includes 30 minutes of participated teaching.
- Workshop: topics discussed at lessons will be the subject of hands-on activities carried out in small groups (analysis of preschool and elementary school students' work, didactic design of reading-writing learning situations, personal experimentation with some literacy practices).

Online and offline teaching materials

- Lesson slides, including examples of preschool and elementary school children's work and transcripts of verbal interaction collected in teaching situations, will be posted on the teaching e-learning page
- On occasion, specifically when lessons focus on the in-depth study of a specific topic, part of the lesson will be recorded and shared.

-Optional materials on these in-depth topics can be made available to anyone unable to attend the lesson.

- Scientific articles.

Programme and references

During the lessons issues concerning the processes of teaching and learning of written language will be explained and discussed. The course aims to consider the close relations and interrelationships between written language (as a cultural object), pupils (as active learners) and teachers (as facilitators of learning processes). Therefore the teaching approach mainly used during the lessons will be the analysis of teaching and learning real practices from kindergarten to primary school.
