

SYLLABUS DEL CORSO

Metodi Quantitativi e Qualitativi della Ricerca Sociale

2425-1-F4901N101

Aims

Knowledge and understanding

This is an introductory course to the basic kit of social research. The course will help students to develop basic skills to read, collect and analyse quantitative and qualitative data about territory and tourism.

Applying knowledge and understanding

The course familiarises students with the principles and techniques of quantitative and qualitative research (observation, interview, documentary analysis) for designing and conducting their individual research projects about territory and tourism.

Contents

The course focuses on the following topics:

paradigms of social research, research design, quantitative techniques, qualitative techniques, introduction to quantitative and qualitative data analysis, practices for the dissemination of research results.

Detailed program

The course focuses on these main topics: the logic of social research, data collection, quantitative data analysis, analysis of secondary data. The student will work with examples drawn from real data about territory and tourism.

The course aims also to overview the wide array of methods in qualitative research (observation, interview, documentary analysis).

The importance of those methods in tourism and territory research will be illustrated and student's ability to design their own research projects will be improved.

A focus will be placed on the practices of sharing research results, including innovative forms of knowledge dissemination..

Prerequisites

Ability of learning, writing and oral communication.

Teaching form

The course consists of 56 hours, approximately 60% of which are delivered through traditional teaching methods (lectures using slides, audio, and video) and 40% through interactive teaching methods (discussions, exercises, group work, presentation of case studies).

The course allows for up to a maximum of 30% of the hours to be conducted remotely (synchronous or asynchronous).
