Course title

SCHOOL AND EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS HISTORY

Topics and course structure

The course presents the main coordinates of the history and evolution of the Italian and European school system in order to return elements of historical-critical reflection with the aim of making teachers more aware of the transformations that have defined the profile of today's school, a complex institution made up of spaces, time, teaching tools, material culture, subjects, teachers, students, parents and technical-administrative staff.
The evolution of the school system and educational institutions in Italy and Europe is analyzed in terms of its relationship with politics, society and the economy, with particular attention to the development of educational institutions in Italy between the 19th, 20th and 21st centuries.

Objectives

The course has the following knowledge and understanding objectives:

1. Knowledge of the main historical-educational transformations of the Italian school from the unification to the present, with reference to the historical-educational transformations of the European school;
2. Knowledge of innovative pedagogical thought at the level of the history of ideas and experiments in the Italian school;
3. Knowledge of the history of teacher training, especially for secondary school teachers;
4. Understanding of the relationship between the current landscape of Italian schooling and its history;
5. Understanding of the main educational issues in specific European contexts in the light of the historical period being analyzed;

6. Understand the relationship between the concept of childhood and adolescence and the educational-institutional structure that Italian and European schools have gradually adopted.

Methodologies

The course will include lectures, discussion time, and other active methods.
